Municipal Impact:

Explanation

The fiscal impact of the bill is unclear, as it is dependent on decisions made by the city of New Haven and the Board of Regents (BOR). The bill removes an option from special act 23-27 that would otherwise allow BOR to undo the conveyance based on a determination of material breach of a memorandum of understanding (MOU) between the city of New Haven and APT Foundation Inc.

In most circumstances, the bill is anticipated to have no fiscal impact, including if 1) the lands in question revert or have already reverted to original control because of other unchanged requirements of the conveyance, or 2) BOR was not going to invoke the clause that is removed in the bill, including if the MOU was already executed and expired without breach.

The bill would only have a fiscal impact if the transfer of lands was otherwise going to happen and BOR would have invoked the clause reverting the conveyance because of the breach of MOU. In this circumstance, the bill would prevent the reversion of control of the involved lands, which results in preventing the loss of assets and gain of assets for both BOR and the city of New Haven and preventing the preclusion of potential revenue gain from any sale of land that would have otherwise occurred and been deposited in the General Fund.

The Out Years

The bill removes the possibility that control of lands is reverted because of the deleted clause in the three years following the conveyance and has no other impact in the out years.
